Opinion - The article is indicated as approved, without mandatory changes, but authors are encouraged to accept proposed suggestions for a better final product, which is more complete and in accordance with the scope and quality of the journal.

The article is very well developed and worked, with a relevant theme for the current period and for the large area of Education, even so, some suggestions were made for possible improvements and also notes were made in the references that had a lot of errors.

NOTE: All mandatory changes pointed out in the revision will be highlighted in the text (both in these notes and in the text with comments) in bold, underlined, red. these need to be done for the text to be approved.

WARNING: ALL CHANGES THAT ARE MADE TO THE TEXT, PLEASE BE MADE IN RED FOR IDENTIFICATION.

General: When dealing with an issue such as integration and an educational paradigm, in this case Ukraine joining the EU system/model, it would be interesting if, at least in the introduction, it was briefly informed which are these differences that need to be sought (in addition to those addressed as the focus of the article, in this case, the digitization and modernization, in technological terms, of Ukrainian education). At least a reference to some kind of document/text/website that can be consulted by readers to find out what the Ukrainian educational model is, what the European educational model is, would be an excellent addition to the proposed debate. It is important to think that multilingual and foreign publications do not share certain bases that may be common when we are writing in our own region or country, so some information that may seem trivial may be of great interest to international readers and it is up to the authors to provide the international reader with the widest possible access to the contents that are addressed in their works.

References: There are errors that need to be modified in the references, references that appear in the final list, but are not in the text, all were highlighted in the comments sent in the text.

I am in favor of publication with the mandatory corrections!
